A reserve carbide holder can be kept ready charged in the car for use when needed. The bell B is attached in tank by two screws and thumb nuts at opposite corners of tank A, which will leave an open joint allowing any superfluous gas to escape. Fill the tank half full with water; as gas is generated, it forces the water out of the bell holding the carbide and gradually works up as the carbide is used. This generator can be made by a good tinsmith from galvanized iron at a cost of from $3.00 to $3.50. The ordinary oil lamps can be used, by replacing the fiat glass with curved glass in order that center of glass will be farther from the flame. Hold glass fronts in by a brass spring covered with asbestos yarn to allow...
